I. BACKGROUND

1. On 19 June 2008, the Co-Investigating Judges issued the Order on Translation Rights and Obligations of the Parties (“Translation Order”), which was addressed to all Parties in the Case File 002/19-09-2007-ECCC/OCIJ, including the Charged Person.<sup>1</sup>
2. On 2 July 2008, the Co-Lawyers filed a Notice of Appeal against the Translation Order and, on 22 July, they filed their Appeal Brief.
3. The Co-Prosecutors filed, on 29 July 2008, an Application for Extension of Time to file their Response to the Appeal. After having received a response from the Charged Person, the Pre-Trial Chamber, on 4 August 2008, granted the Application and ordered that the Co-Prosecutors’ Response be filed by 15 August 2008.
4. On 15 August 2008, the Co-Prosecutors submitted their “Response to IENG Sary’s Appeal on Translation Rights and Obligations of the Parties” (“Co-Prosecutors’ Response”).
5. The Co-Lawyers for the Civil Parties did not file any responses.
6. The Pre-Trial Chamber received a request for leave to file an amicus curiae brief which was denied.<sup>2</sup>
7. On 10 September 2008, the Pre-Trial Chamber decided, as requested by the Parties, to determine the Appeal on the basis of the written submissions of the Parties, permitting the Co-Lawyers to file a reply to the Co-Prosecutors’ Response.<sup>3</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Decision to Determine Ieng Sary’s Appeal on the Basis of Written Submissions Only, 10 September 2008, A190/II/7.

8. On 11 September 2008, the Defence submitted their Reply to the Co-Prosecutors' Response ("Reply").

II. ADMISSIBILITY OF THE APPEAL

9. On 19 June 2008, the Co-Investigating Judges issued their Translation Order, which was notified to the Parties on 23 June 2008. The Co-Lawyers for the Charged Person filed a Notice of Appeal, in accordance with Internal Rule 75, on 2 July 2008. The Appeal Brief was filed on 22 July 2008 and therefore in time.

a. Submissions of the Parties

10. The Co-Lawyers submit that their "Request for Expedited Translation of All Supporting Documentation to the Introductory Submission" of 10 January<sup>4</sup> and their letter reminding the Co-Investigating Judges of this request dated 6 May 2008<sup>5</sup> constituted requests for investigative action under Rule 55(10), so their denial by the Co-Investigating Judges in the Translation Order constitutes an order refusing a request for investigative action allowed under the Rules, thus appealable under Rule 74(3)(b).<sup>6</sup> Acknowledging that "[t]here appears to be no clear definition of what constitutes a request for investigative action under Rule 55(1)", the Co-Lawyers submit that "the logical meaning of an investigative action is any action which affects the substance of the investigation" and that "this effectively means anything that relates to obtaining evidence that is placed in the case file which pertains to guilt or innocence".<sup>7</sup> In their views, "[t]he refusal by the OCIJ to order the translation of the documents allegedly supporting the guilt of Mr. IENG Sary amounts to a refusal to carry out an action that would have added evidence to the case file."<sup>8</sup>

11. The Co-Lawyers further submit that "the Translation Order violates Mr. IENG Sary's right to participate in his own defence as this is only protected if he is able to see the evidence submitted against him in a language which he fully understands, namely Khmer. The Translation Order also violates Mr. IENG Sary's fundamental right to effective legal representation as it prevents his foreign lawyer from being able to review and analyze the evidence against his client in a language which he can understand, namely English."<sup>9</sup> In their views, the Translation Order also violates the principle of equality of arms since it reverses the burden of translation from the Court to the Defence Support Section.<sup>10</sup>

12. The Co-Prosecutors argue that the Appeal is inadmissible as "the Translation Decision is not one of the decisions against which a charged person can appeal to the Pre-Trial Chamber". In the alternative, they submit that the Appeal is without merit as "(1) applicable law and international standards require only certain (and not all) documents to be translated into a language the defendant understands, (2) a defendant has no right to have all documents translated into the language of his international counsel, especially when the defence team and the Defence Support Section have sufficient linguistic capacity, and (3) provision of an additional free translator to the defence team does not reverse the equality of arms but adds to its linguistic capacity."<sup>11</sup>

b. Jurisdiction of the Pre-Trial Chamber

13. Internal Rule 73 provides:

"Rule 73. Additional Jurisdiction of the Pre-Trial Chamber

In addition to its power to adjudicate disputes between the Co-Prosecutors or the Co-Investigating Judges, as set out in the Agreement and the ECCC Law, the Chamber shall have sole jurisdiction over:

- a) appeals against decisions of the Co-Investigating Judges, as provided in Rule 74;
- b) applications to annul investigative action, as provided in Rule 76; and
- c) the appeals provided for in Rules 11(5) and (6); 23(7) and (9); 35(6) and 38(3) of these IRs [Internal Rules]."

14. Internal Rule 74 further provides in relevant part:

"Rule 74. Grounds for Pre-Trial Appeals

<sup>11</sup> Co-Prosecutors' Response to IENG Sary's Appeal on Translation Rights and Obligations of the Parties, 15 August 2008, A190/II/5 ("Co-Prosecutors' Response"), para. 3.

1. No appeal shall lie against decisions of the Co-Investigating Judges where the matter has already been heard by the Chamber pursuant to the dispute settlement provisions in Rule 72.
2. The Co-Prosecutors may appeal against all orders by the Co-Investigating Judges.
3. The Charged Person may appeal against the following orders of the Co-Investigating Judges:
  - a) confirming the jurisdiction of the ECCC;
  - b) refusing requests for investigative action allowed under these IRs;
  - c) refusing requests for the restitution of seized items;
  - d) refusing requests for expert reports allowed under these IRs;
  - e) refusing requests for additional expert investigation allowed under these IRs;
  - f) relating to provisional detention or bail;
  - g) refusing an application to seize the Chamber for annulment of investigative action; or
  - h) relating to protective measures.”

15. As the Appeal is based on Internal Rule 74(3)(b), the Pre-Trial Chamber shall determine whether it is lodged against an order of the Co-Investigating Judges “refusing [a request] for investigative action allowed under these IRs”.

Requests for investigative action by a Charged Person

16. Internal Rule 55(10) provides charged persons the right to request investigative actions:

“At any time during an investigation, the Co-Prosecutors, a Charged Person or a Civil Party may request the Co-Investigating Judges to make such orders or undertake such investigative action as they consider necessary for the conduct of the investigation. If the Co-Investigating Judges do not agree with the request, they shall issue a rejection order as soon as possible and, in any event, before the end of the judicial investigation. The order, which shall set out the reasons for the rejection, shall be notified to the parties and shall be subject to appeal.”

17. Internal Rule 58(6) further provides:

“At any time during an investigation, the Charged Person may request the Co-Investigating Judges to interview him or her, question witnesses, go to a site, order expertise or collect other evidence on his or her behalf. The request shall be made in writing with a statement of factual reasons for the request. If the Co-Investigating Judges do not grant the request, they shall issue a rejection order as soon as possible, and in any event, before the end of investigation. The rejection order shall state the factual reasons for rejection. The Charged Person shall immediately be notified of the rejection order. The Charged Person may appeal the rejection order to the Pre-Trial Chamber.”

18. The Internal Rules do not explicitly define the expression “investigative action”. However, its meaning can be inferred when reading together different provisions of the Internal Rules.

19. With this respect, Internal Rule 55(5) provides:

“In the conduct of judicial investigations, the Co-Investigating Judges may take any investigative action conducive to ascertaining the truth. In all cases, they shall conduct their investigation impartially, whether the evidence is inculpatory or exculpatory. [...]” (emphasis added)

20. The Pre-Trial Chamber considers that the process of ascertaining the truth necessarily involves the collection of information. In civil law systems, this is, indeed, described as being the purpose of a judicial investigation.<sup>12</sup> In the French system, investigative actions are described as being acts by which an investigating judge searches for evidence.<sup>13</sup> The Pre-Trial Chamber notes that the Cambodian system, on which the Internal Rules are based, is rather similar to the French system.

21. The Pre-Trial Chamber observes that Internal Rule 58(6), which specifically enumerates requests that can be made by a charged person to the Co-Investigating Judges, refers only to actions that aim at gathering evidence.

22. Another indication that investigative actions are aimed to collect information can be found in Internal Rule 62, which deals with the possibility for the Co-Investigating Judges to delegate their power to undertake investigative actions to ECCC investigators or the judicial police. Internal Rule 62 provides in relevant part:

“1. The Co-Investigating Judges may issue a Rogatory Letter requiring any Investigator from their Office, or the Judicial Police, to conduct investigative action. However, only the Judicial Police shall have the power to undertake any coercive action.

2. A Rogatory Letter shall not be issued in a general form, and shall clearly specify the nature of investigative work to be done, which must relate directly to the crime or crimes under investigation. [...]

3. The delegates shall act under the supervision of the Co-Investigating Judges and shall report only to them concerning the enforcement of the Rogatory Letter. When a Rogatory Letter has been issued to an ECCC Investigator or the Judicial Police, that person shall proceed as follows:

a) The Judicial Police or Investigator shall draw up a written record of his or her investigations and findings, which shall comply with the provisions of Rule 51(8) as appropriate;

b) The Judicial Police or Investigators shall not question the Charged Person. Investigators may interview Civil Parties as provided in Rule 59(6);

c) The Judicial Police may search for and seize evidence, as authorised by the Co-Investigating Judges.

23. On the basis of these considerations, the Pre-Trial Chamber finds that requests for investigative actions should be interpreted as being requests for action to be performed by the Co-Investigating Judges or, upon delegation, by the ECCC investigators or the judicial police, with the purpose of collecting information conducive to ascertaining the truth.

Order on Translation Rights and Obligations of the Parties

24. The Translation Order determines the rights and obligations of the Parties in relation to translation. With this respect, the Co-Investigating Judges mentioned:

“Considering the lack of a statutory provision on the extent of translation obligations and rights, Considering that the content of such obligations and rights gives rise to an important question of general interest, so the Co-Investigating Judges have decided to address this memorandum to all Parties [...]”<sup>14</sup>

25. The Translation Order does not constitute an action that aims at collecting information. Furthermore, it is noted that the Co-Investigating Judges were not requested to undertake any action themselves, which is a characteristic of an investigative action, as mentioned above.

26. The Pre-Trial Chamber finds that the Appeal is not lodged against an order refusing a request for investigating action. It does not fall within the ambit of appealable matters set out in Internal Rule 74(3)(b).
27. The Pre-Trial Chamber further notes that there is no other specific provision in the Internal Rules allowing the Charged Person to appeal the Translation Order before the Pre-Trial Chamber.
28. The Internal Rules provide for a number of orders that can be appealed to the Pre-Trial Chamber by charged persons. The list is exhaustive and the Pre-Trial Chamber has jurisdiction to decide only on appeals against the mentioned orders and decisions. Other orders of the Co-Investigating Judges are subject to control through the annulment procedure, which ensures that a charged person may request that a proceeding affected by procedural defect which infringes his/her rights be annulled.<sup>15</sup> The Pre-Trial Chamber observes that this procedure is different from the appeal procedure and therefore requires different actions from the Co-Lawyers to lead the issue before the Pre-Trial Chamber.

The right to a fair trial

29. The Pre-Trial Chamber notes that the Co-Lawyers allege that the Translation Order impairs the Charged Person's fair trial rights, as detailed in paragraph 11 above.
30. With this respect, Internal Rule 21 provides:

“Rule 21. Fundamental Principles

1. The applicable ECCC Law, Internal Rules, Practice Directions and Administrative Regulations shall be interpreted so as to always safeguard the interests of Suspects, Charged Persons, Accused and Victims and so as to ensure legal certainty and transparency of proceedings, in light of the inherent specificity of the ECCC, as set out in the ECCC Law and the Agreement. In this respect:

- a) ECCC proceedings shall be fair and adversarial and preserve a balance between the rights of the parties. [...]

d) Every person suspected or prosecuted shall be presumed innocent as long as his/her guilt has not been established. Any such person has the right to be informed of any charges brought against him/her, to be defended by a lawyer of his/her choice, and at every stage of the proceedings shall be informed of his/her right to remain silent.”

31. The Pre-Trial Chamber will examine whether Internal Rule 21 requires that it adopts a broader interpretation of the Charged Person’s right to appeal in order to ensure that proceedings during the investigation are fair and adversarial and that a balance is preserved between the rights of the Parties.

32. The Translation Order provides that the Charged Person is entitled to receive translation into Khmer and English of the following documents:

- any Indictment of the Co-Investigating Judges;
- the elements of proof on which any such Indictment would rely;
- the Introductory Submission and any Final Submissions by the Co-Prosecutors;
- the footnotes and indexes of factual elements on which those Submissions rely (concretely, D3 and D3/I-V);
- all judicial decisions and orders;
- all filings by the Parties before the ECCC, as provided by Article 7.1 of the Practice Direction on Filing Documents before the ECCC.<sup>16</sup>

33. The Co-Investigating Judges specify that this order is designed to determine the rights and obligations of the Parties during the investigation and that “it is for the Trial Chamber, once seized of the case file, to manage the translation requirements of any trial, as the interests of the proper administration of justice and of the right to a fair trial dictate.”<sup>17</sup>

34. The Pre-Trial Chamber observes that the Charged Person has, pursuant to Internal Rule 21(1)(d), the right to be informed of the charges brought against him. However, neither the ECCC Law nor the Internal Rules provide charged persons an explicit right to receive all documents contained in their Case File into their own language or that of their lawyer(s). The fact that a language is one of the three official languages of the Court does not amount, in itself, to a right for the Charged Person to have all documents contained in his case file translated into this language.

35. Consistent with the reasoning in the Translation Order<sup>18</sup>, jurisprudence of international tribunals has repeatedly held that a defendant's right to translation of documents into a language he or she understands does not extend to all documents in his/her case file<sup>19</sup>, even in the case where a defendant is self-represented<sup>20</sup>. A request for translation of the entire case file into the language of the defendant's lawyer has also been denied.<sup>21</sup> More particularly, the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia ("ICTY") and the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda ("ICTR") have denied requests for translation of all documents on the basis that "translation in advance of each and every document into the [language of the accused] beyond what is required by the Statute and Rules may seriously jeopardize the Accused's right to an expeditious trial because of the very substantial time and resources required for translation of all documents."<sup>22</sup> The International Criminal Court ("ICC") has held that the fairness principle does "not grant [the defendant] the right to have all procedural documents and all evidentiary materials disclosed by the Prosecution translated."<sup>23</sup>

36. The Pre-Trial Chamber observes that, depending on the specific circumstances of a case, translation of document(s) might be necessary to ensure that a charged person is able to exercise his/her rights during the investigation.<sup>24</sup> By deciding that "the key requirement is to allow a charged person to have 'knowledge of the case against him and to defend himself, notably by being able to put before the court his version of the events'"<sup>25</sup>, the Co-Investigating Judges have

<sup>23</sup> Lubanga, p. 6. The European Court of Human Rights ("ECHR") has held that a defendant's fair trial rights were not violated by the fact that not all the documents in his case file were in a language he understood: Kamasinski.

<sup>24</sup> The ECHR has consistently held that the manner in which fair trial rights are to be applied during a preliminary investigation "depends on the special features of the proceedings involved and on the circumstances of the case" and that "in order to determine whether the aim of Article 6 - a fair trial - has been achieved, regard must be had to the entirety of the domestic proceedings conducted in the case". See in particular Imbroscia v. Switzerland, Application no. 13972/88, 24 November 1993, para. 38. See also Granger v. the United Kingdom, Application no. 11932/86, 28 March 1990, para. 44.

set out a standard that shall ensure respect of the Charged Person's rights and thus ensure the fairness of the proceedings at this stage.

37. The Pre-Trial Chamber notes that in accordance with the Translation Order, the Charged Person has received the following material in English and Khmer:

- the Introductory Submission, including its footnotes which identify the material supporting the Co-Prosecutors' allegations;
- the Schedules, annexed to the Introductory Submission, which consist of a list containing a description of evidentiary material in support of specific events or alleged crimes;
- Annex C of the Introductory Submission, which consists of a list of all documents that were part of the Case File at the time of the filing of the Introductory Submission, accompanied by a description of the content of each of these documents;
- after the commencement of the judicial investigation, almost all the evidentiary material generated by the Co-Investigating Judges, including documentary evidence and written records of interviews (in Khmer and/or French); and
- all the orders and decisions of the Co-Investigating Judges and the Pre-Trial Chamber as well as the pleadings filed by the Parties in relation to appeals lodged by the Charged Person.

38. Amongst the documents referred to by the Co-Prosecutors in relation to the Charged Person's individual liability, only a limited number are not available in Khmer or English.<sup>26</sup>

39. While French is not one of the two working languages chosen by the Charged Person and his defence team, the Co-Lawyers recognise that the Charged Person, who has studied in France, "speaks and understands a certain level of French".<sup>27</sup>

40. The Charged Person is represented by both an international and a national lawyer, as it is his right pursuant to Internal Rule 22. The Co-Prosecutors have submitted, and it was not contested by the Co-Lawyers, that the Charged Person's national lawyer understands Khmer and English

<sup>26</sup> Among the documents quoted in footnotes 362 to 405 of the Introductory Submission dealing with the Charged Person's individual responsibility, only seven are not available in Khmer or English at this time, representing a total of 16 pages if the book titled "J'ai cru aux Khmers Rouges" (272 pages) is excluded.

<sup>27</sup> IENG Sary's Reply to the Co-Prosecutors' Response to IENG Sary's Appeal on Translation Rights and Obligations of the Parties, 11 September 2008, A190/II/8 ("Reply"), para. 11.

and that the defence team of the Charged Person also comprises a Cambodian lawyer and an historian, who are both proficient in Khmer and English,<sup>28</sup> as well as a British lawyer.

41. In addition to his legal team, the Charged Person has been allowed “free of charge and full time, the assistance of a translator (between two official working languages to be specified by the defence team) to ensure that the charged persons and the defence teams can have certain documents translated as required, to assess the teams’ translation requirements for transmission to CMS [Court Management Section] and to assist the teams’ collaboration with CMS.”<sup>29</sup> In this respect, it is noted that international jurisprudence has recognised that providing a defendant with an interpreter is an adequate substitute for provision of the translation of certain documents.<sup>30</sup>
42. The Charged Person is also allowed to identify specific documents and request their translation.<sup>31</sup>
43. The Pre-Trial Chamber notes that the ICTY and ICTR have found that exculpatory material shall be made available to the defendant in a language he or she understands in order for the defendant to be able to prepare his or her defence.<sup>32</sup> The Pre-Trial Chamber considers that the defence team is in a position to properly identify the material that could be exculpatory and then request translation of these specific documents, which it is allowed to do by the Translation Order.
44. The Pre-Trial Chamber finds that the Charged Person’s rights safeguarded in Internal Rule 21 are not violated. The Translation Order is in accordance with international standards in respect of translation rights. The provision of a translator for a multilingual defence team ensures that all necessary linguistic requirements are properly met for this stage of the proceedings before the ECCC. The Pre-Trial Chamber therefore finds that Internal Rule 21 does not force it to interpret the Internal Rules in such a way that the Appeal against the Translation Order should be declared admissible.
